Tip thwarts jail break

One of 2 involved is alleged Dietzel killer

By Scott Wuerz
Staff writer

A tip from an inmate thwarted a jail break and what could have been a dangerous situation at the Madison County Jail Thursday.

Sheriff Bob Churchich said two inmates, apparently planning an escape, had smuggled in a pair of hacksaw blades, a knife and a bag of marijuana.

The sheriff declined to speculate on just how the contraband items had reached the two.

"We had some information (about weapons) that gave us a bad feeling, so we decided to check into it," Churchich said. "We're well aware of how this came about, and we've taken appropriate measures to see that it doesn't happen again."

He said the information on weapons had come from an inmate.

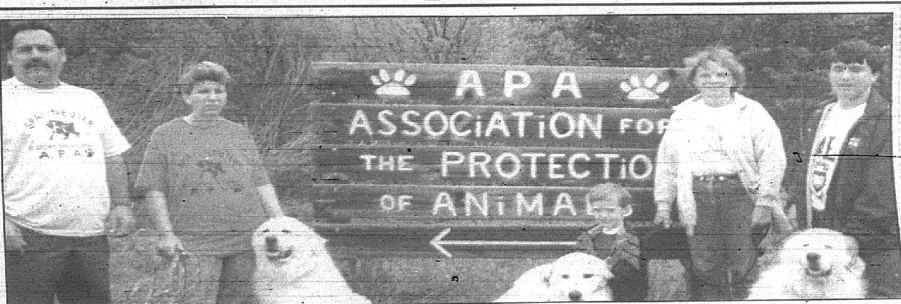

One of the two involved in the alleged jail break, Edward L. Miller, 37, of Cahokia is awaiting trial on charges of murder. He is accused of the beating and stabbing death of JoAnn Dietzel of Godfrey in July 1992. Dietzel was a former Granite City resident.

The other inmate, David Alan May, 28, of Edwardsville is being held on numerous counts of burglary, authorities said.

"Miller's obviously no Sunday school teacher," Churchich said. "This was apparently a jail break in the planning stages, and I'm glad we were on top of it because a guard could have been severely injured or killed."

May allegedly smuggled the knife and hacksaw blades into the jail May 11, Churchich said.

Flooded-out dogs now have new owners

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

The Great Flood of 1993 on the Mississippi River swept away the West Alton home of Larry, Maggie and Tank. For many days, the trio was left stranded without food or shelter.

When they were rescued by a crew from the U.S. Coast Guard at the height of the flooding, Larry, Maggie and Tank were in need of immediate medical attention. They were in very bad shape — so bad it was suggested that the humane team might be to just put them out of their misery.

They are, after all, only dogs.

State Humane Investigator Larry Judd, who was part of the rescue team, thought otherwise.

As president of the Granite City

Association for the Protection of Animals, which operates a "no-kill" animal shelter, Judd places a high value on animal life.

So Larry, Maggie and Tank — all White Pyrenees — were taken to the APA shelter at 5000 Old Alton Road.

The Great Flood was rough on pets, and Judd and other APA members were part of many rescues.

They joined the ranks of 381 past Women of Achievement, many of whom attended this year's luncheon.

Kathe Hartley, traffic and news reporter for KMOX, served as mistress of ceremonies for the gala event. Guest speakers included: Thomas E. (See WOMEN, Page 13A)

Drug sweep cleans up

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Officers from seven law enforcement agencies swept through Madison, Venice and Eagle Park Acres on Wednesday night in an attempt to drive street-corner drug dealers away from their businesses.

The multi-agency operation netted four drug-related arrests — three of them in Madison.

But more importantly, Madison Police Chief Paul Bargiel said, the operation cleaned up the street-corners — at least temporarily.

"If you drove down those streets late Wednesday night, you would have seen nobody," Bargiel said.

He said his department requested assistance from Illinois State Police in dealing with "the problem of street-corner drug dealers in certain areas of the city."

In response to the request, ISP put together a team of officers from the state police, the Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Ill.

Quadruple jeopardy?

Pornography defendant says three trials are enough

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

The Madison County State's Attorney's office is appealing the recent dismissal of a child pornography case against a Granite City man.

But Timothy Carney, 33, the man against whom the charge was filed, says prosecutors are continuing to pursue the matter out of "spiteful vengeance."

After a hung jury, a mistrial and a court order dismissing the case, (State's Attorney) Bill Haine and (Assistant State's Attorney) Craig Jensen continue to pursue their quest to convict me of a crime that never should have gone to court in the first place," Carney said.

Carney was arrested in April 1990 just after a child pornography videotape was delivered to his home as part of a U.S.

Customs Service sting operation.

The Customs Service had obtained a list of customers from another real operation to entice potential customers to purchase material from a non-existent company set up for the operation, Artiste International.

After Carney received several solicitations from the fake company, he forwarded one to Artiste International, court records show.

On April 20 this year, Associate Judge Lawrence Keshner dismissed the charge against Carney, ruling that Carney was entrapped by the operation.

"Upon delivery of the material to the defendant, a squad of federal agents and local police entered the defendant's home and confiscated a large amount of books, magazines and other pornographic material. It is significant that there was no other child pornography, except that which the government had furnished the defendant among the vast amount of materials seized from the defendant," Keshner wrote in ordering dismissal.

But on May 10, Jensen filed a notice of appeal in the case, saying that Keshner's order dismissing the case on the issue of entrapment "substantially impairs" the state's case.

"In dismissing the case against Carney, Keshner cited a 1992 case in which the court intervened when '... the government's quest for convictions (led) to the apprehension of an otherwise law-abiding citizen who, if left to his own devices, likely would have never run afoul of the law....'

"But prosecutors deny that Carney was entrapped, saying he ordered the material of his own will."

A trial on the same charge ended in 1991 with a hung (undecided) jury. A second trial the next year was ruled a mistrial.

80-year term in murder

By Bonita Tillman
Staff writer

David F.H. Clark responded to his 80-year prison term for murder by cursing the judge Thursday.

Clark, 31, was found guilty in March of first-degree murder in the 1960 death of Ricky Muckenstrum of Granite City. But he maintained his innocence right up to sentencing.

"I was not involved in this murder. I hung around more with the individual who ended up dying (then co-defendant John Ashburn). I had no reason for wanting that man dead," Clark said.

He said he had even taken up for Muckenstrum on several occasions before his death.

Judge Michael O'Malley said Muckenstrum "deserved a chance to breathe fresh spring air of May."

"But I don't believe you do Mr. Clark," O'Malley added.

Assistant state's attorney Dennis Hatch said Clark deprived the Muckenstrum family of a good son, brother and father just to show he was a "tough guy."

Hatch also cited Clark's criminal history over 12 years in which he was in and out of prison on several times on burglary and residential burglary charges.

"This defendant has decided he doesn't give a damn about what society's rules are or about someone who cannot defend himself," Hatch said. "I think he planned this and pretty much ushered him (Muckenstrum) into that truck and took him to his death."

Clark was facing 100 years under the extended term law which allows more time for those with extensive criminal records. Hatch asked for the maximum sentence.

Defense attorney Jon Allard said most of Clark's previous crimes occurred between 1979 and 1981 and none had involved violence toward others. He also argued that no evidence showed that Clark had planned the murder.

Ashburn of Pontoon Beach is awaiting trial on the same charge in the case. Prosecutors said the two men got Muckenstrum drunk, shot him in the head and gutted him before dumping his body in a vacant lot between Venice and Brooklyn July 11, 1990.

At least two men at Clark's trial testified they heard him brag about killing someone several months after Muckenstrum's body was found.

Smith retires as auxiliary captain

A retirement party for Capt. Randy Smith was held at the Granite City Auxiliary Police Hall on May 4.

Honored guests included Mayor Ron Selph, Granite City Police Detective Ray Takmajian and Sandy Smith, wife of Randy Smith.

Capt. Smith retired after 18 years as a volunteer police officer.

Smith was commissioned as a patrolman on Feb. 4, 1976. He later served as a sergeant and lieutenant and was promoted to captain more than eight years ago.

Other titles and offices included finance officer, range officer at the Charles Melvin Price Support Center and administration officer.

Chief Mark Dowdy and Assistant Chief Larry Earney presented a plaque to Capt. Randy Smith for dedication and outstanding service with the auxiliary.

A number of auxiliary police officers attended the ceremony to praise him for "a job well done" and to voice best wishes.

Mammoth yard sale planned

The Holiday Shores third annual yard sale will be held June 4 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. (rain date is June 5).

Last year's yard sale was a big success; more than 100 homes participated. Maps with addresses and treasure lists will be available at the intersection of St. James and Moro roads by the IGA Store.

Cub Scout Pack 220 will serve breakfast and lunch at the Holiday Shores Fire House located on Holiday Dam Road.

Woman, 28, faces five sexual assault charges

A 28-year-old former Granite City area woman has been charged with allegedly sexually assaulting two young boys a total of five times in late 1992.

Cozette L. Cunningham, of Devil's Elbow, Mo., formerly of the 1300 block of Washington Avenue in Madison, was charged with five counts of aggravated criminal sexual abuse in felony warrants issued Tuesday. Bond on the warrants totals $175,000.

Cunningham was not in custody Friday afternoon.

She is alleged to have sexually assaulted a boy under the age of 13 four times; and to have sexually assaulted a second boy, also under 13, once.

All of the alleged incidents occurred in Granite City between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, 1992, said Richard Werths, the Granite City Police Department detective who investigated the case.

Werths said that one of the alleged victims related the abuse during a counseling session, prompting the investigation.

Cunningham is the daughter of James L. Davis, 51, formerly of Granite City.

Davis is currently serving a 19-year, five-month sentence in a federal prison. He was sentenced March 1 by Senior U.S. District Judge William L. Beatty.

Last December, Davis pleaded guilty in federal court to two counts of transporting a juvenile under the age of 12 from Illinois to Missouri with the intent to commit sodomy and other acts prohibited under Illinois, Missouri and federal law.

Those incidents occurred between July 1991 and July 1992, investigators said.

Police beat

The following are among incidents reported recently at area police departments.

Warrant arrests

• Wendell H. Hawkins, 39, of the 3100 block of Lee Avenue, was recently arrested by Madison County authorities on a felony warrant charging him with aggravated criminal sexual abuse.

Hawkins allegedly fondled a girl under the age of 13 years in a January 1993 incident in Granite City.

• Ruben Barron, 38, of the 2400 block of Adams Street, was arrested at 6:25 p.m. May 5 on a

• Chester L. Hodge, 29, of the 1300 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, was arrested at 4 p.m. May 5 on a Metropolitan Enforcement Group of Southwestern Illinois warrant charging him with unlawful delivery of a controlled substance.

Track, club call operations marginal

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Stage nightclub and Gateway International auto raceway both maintain they are operating at the very edge of profitability.

Both say a planned city entertainment tax would drive them out of business and Thursday both presented numbers they say prove just that.

At a formal hearing at Madison City Hall, the aldermanic Finance Committee was presented with copies of federal corporate income tax returns by both Stagez and Gateway International.

Officers of both corporations gave sworn testimony concerning the financial standing of the corporations.

The committee, chaired by Alderman Norris Horton, is considering establishing a $1-a-head entertainment tax on events, including races and live music performances, that are held in the city's entertainment district.

The district is located on Highway 203 south of town.

While the committee is expected to make a report at Tuesday's City Council meeting, final action on the issue is not expected at that time.

Although the tax returns were kept confidential, testimony during the hearing indicated that the race track has been operating at the break-even level for several years and that last year Stagez ended up $225,000 in red ink.

Testifying for Stagez were Tom Venezia, who owns the land at Stagez and rents it to his son; and the on, Milan Venezia.

While Stagez had an income of nearly $1.4 million last year, Tom Venezia said almost all of that went right back into operating expenses.

He called the building a "maintenance nightmare" and said $300,000 was spent rehabilitating it last year.

This year, he said, the club is spending more than $25,000 for a new air conditioner for just one section of the building.

Flooding in the parking lot meant losses in excess of $200,000 last year, Tom Venezia said.

Milan Venezia said advertising last year cost about $300,000 and entertainment acts cost another $205,000.

"When you start adding figures like that, a million-five doesn't sound like so much," Milan Venezia said.

Just passing along the extra cost will not work, the Venezias said, because the current $5 cover charge is as high as the market will bear.

Tom Venezia said that one time Milan Venezia had brought in a name band—Cheap Trick—and charged a $14 cover charge.

"He lost $8,000 on that deal," Tom Venezia said. "He won't be doing that again."

Milan Venezia said another time he had raised the cover to $7 for a special band. While the usual attendance is about 1,000, he said, that night it was only 500 and the club

County's cable plan advances

The Madison County Board is up closer to organizing a unified front of municipal and county officials to negotiate cable television rates and service standards.

The board passed an ordinance Wednesday giving itself the authority to regulate rates, service and installation charges of any cable TV companies doing business in the county.

The ordinance codifies powers already given to counties and cities in a 1993 Federal Communications Commission ruling. The ruling dealt with local regulation of cable rates and services.

"It's really just a housekeeping matter so we can move along with this," said board member Alan Dunstan, chairman of the Legislative Committee and one of the leading proponents of the consortium.

Dunstan and municipal leaders from Alton, Edwardsville, Collinsville and other cities have been discussing the idea of negotiating a single set of cable rates and service standards that would apply to all cable companies in the county.

The next step, officials said, is to hire an attorney with expertise in telecommunications law to help sort out the complex legal questions involved in regulating cable operators.

Dunstan said a decision on whether to hire an attorney would probably be made later this summer.

In other action, the board approved a $500,000 proposal to automate the Madison County Circuit Clerk's Office.

The office will buy equipment and transfer records now kept on paper and microfilm to computer files.

The money will be repaid over several years from the Circuit Clerk's Office's automation fund.

Disposal of traffic ticket questioned

A traffic ticket issued by the Pontoon Beach Police Department has apparently done a disappearing act in the wastebasket of a top Madison County official.

The ticket, issued in January to a 23-year-old Granite City man for not wearing a seat belt, was reportedly dismissed at the hands of Don Bridick, a Sheriff's Department employee and chief of security at the Madison County Courthouse.

The ticket, number 024088, was discovered in Bridick's office wastebasket torn into four pieces. The same ticket was dismissed by Madison County Associate Judge George Filcoff the same day.

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine said Tuesday he plans to ask Bridick how the dismissed ticket landed in his courthouse office.

"This isn't the first time I've heard of (Bridick) getting involved in traffic tickets," Haine said. "I will demand a full explanation from him, and I expect him to have a full answer."

"Point blank, Deputy Bridick has no authority to petition the court or my staff to dismiss traffic tickets. I am going to investigate this matter to the fullest."

Madison County Assistant State's Attorney John Abel reportedly agreed to the dismissal, court records show. After Haine learned Abel was involved, he said he will also discuss the ticket with him.

"I don't want Deputy Bridick involved in anything my office handles," Haine said. "He is courthouse security, and that is where his responsibilities lie."

Neither Bridick nor Madison County Sheriff Bob Churchich could be reached for comment Tuesday.

In addition to the seat belt violation, the defendant, Robert Relko, of the 1500 block of Bishop Lane, was issued a

Schools living on the brink

(Alton Telegraph comment)

There is more grim news on the education funding front as more area communities have been added to the State Board of Education's watch list of financially troubled schools. School districts in Granite City, Madison, Roxana, Livingston and Collinsville are on the list.

Over recent years, some other districts have been on and off the list or have been threatened with listing.

Essentially, making the list means the school district's budget is "in the red" by 5 percent or more. School districts that do not come up with adequate plans to balance their budgets or fail to do so after a reasonable length of time even risk losing local control to the state.

This year, 145 school districts are on the list, a 30 percent increase from the number listed last year. And since the list was created in 1988, about 42 percent of all state school districts have been listed at one time or another, according to State Education Superintendent Robert Leininger.

In releasing this year's list, Leininger notes schools' financial problems have increased and will continue to increase as the state's share of school funding decreases. Since 1976, he notes, the state's share has fallen from 48 percent to 34 percent. The burden has been shifted to property taxpayers, who are constantly asked to pay more.

Leininger, whose need for tact and political discretion is blunted by the fact that he'll soon retire, issues a challenge we hope every state candidate will heed.

"This state needs a plan for the future that will give its schools an adequate and stable funding source and an equitable system for distributing that money to the districts that need it most."

Through the 1994 primary and the general election campaign, voters will hear many promises from candidates for the legislature, governor and other state offices. But his statement is the one they really need to listen to.

Education funding in this state is on the brink of disaster. And many real estate taxpayers are on the brink of poverty. Voters must demand that the next election becomes a first step back from the brink.

500 town meetings held by Simon, some leading to ideas for legislation

By Robert Estill of Copley News Service

More than a year ago, in an appearance at Wabash Valley College in Mount Carmel, U.S. Sen. Paul Simon reached the 500 mark in town meetings he had conducted since the Illinois Democrat became senator in January 1985.

The senator has been people-oriented since his first campaign for the Illinois House in the 1960s in the Troy-Granite City area, where he visited virtually every home.

He later served in the Illinois Senate, as lieutenant governor and as a congressman.

Simon, who suspends the town meetings during his election years, topped in 1989 the previous record number of town meetings by an Illinois senator—according to Chris Ryan, deputy press secretary.

Ryan said the old mark of about 350 town meetings was set by the late Paul H. Douglas, an Illinois Democrat who served in the Senate from 1948-1967 and was a role model and mentor for Simon.

The town hall meetings, Ryan said, frequently have triggered legislation, such as Simon's 1991 National Literacy Act, which expanded adult literacy programs nationwide.

That legislation was born when Gloria Wattles, a Louisville housewife, read at the 1987 Teutopolis town meeting the first letter she had ever written.

The letter thanked Simon for sponsoring an adult literacy program that enabled her to be able to read to her children.

Credibility is lost when U.S. tries to bluff others

TO THE EDITOR:

It's all bark and no bite. Our president, Bill Clinton, is fast becoming known as the president who cries "Wolf!" His latest bellicosity? "Warning the murderous thugs running Haiti that it is time for them to go," and then placing hints in the news media of possible U.S. intervention.

One wonders why he didn't fire the warhead 15 months ago when he had his first shot at these gangsters? It might have carried more weight then.

No one advocates the U.S. president firing at will and shipping American troops to every hot spot in the world.

But bluffs never fulfilled their potency.

The rationale for sending troops to Grenada, Panama and, most importantly, Iraq, was questioned by many, but in their aftermath, no one doubted U.S. resolve.

Clinton squandered that advantage.

The pity is that the cost of regaining credibility might be an unwanted and unneeded war. One must be careful when to bark, as bluff without a bite could look like a loser.

DEPRESSION

My roommate was depressed. More than the blues. I mean seriously depressed.

She always looked sad. Cried a lot.

She couldn't sleep, eat, or do any of her work.

Treat it! Defeat it!

Most of the time she wouldn't talk to me.

I figured she needed to get professional help, before her pain got worse. So I checked it out.

I was amazed. Once her depression was diagnosed, treatment was effective and began to work within a few weeks.

Official travels to Vietnam

Physician exchange program being planned

Ginny Lepping, executive vice president of Providence Occupational Health Services, Granite City, recently traveled to Vietnam as a member of the International Committee on Occupational Health.

She was hosted by Le Van Trung, MD, PhD, director of the National Institute of the Occupational Environment Health Ministry, in Hanoi.

"With the support of the Scientific Committee on Developing Countries, I am working with committed members and the Vietnamese occupational health ministry to coordinate a physician exchange program," Lepping said.

"Robert Thomas, MD, medical director for Providence, is an associate faculty member in the Residency Program at St. Louis University and would serve as the mentor for visiting physicians."

"Many of the industries in the northern part of Vietnam, near the Chinese border, mirror those in Southwestern Illinois, like coal and steel. The goal is to provide a learning opportunity to help visiting physicians develop new approaches and options to old health-care problems."

On her 1,000-mile journey from Saigon to Hanoi, Lepping traveled primarily by train and motorcycle.

"The challenge was first that I had to learn to ride a motorcycle and then I had to learn to navigate rush hour in Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) or Hanoi."

"It is a sight to behold. A sea of bicycles and motorbikes dodge and merge without the benefit of traffic lights."

Currently, Lepping is a student of international human rights at Webster University.

Her trip to Vietnam created the opportunity to work with the Sisters of St. Paul de Chartres at their orphanage and school in DaNang, a southern city near China Beach.

"Since 1988, non-government organizations have had more success with the easing of government restrictions in coordinating health care and education efforts," Lepping said.

"A highlight of my trip was an opportunity to meet with the chief of Archival Research, Robert DeStatte, at the Missing In Action office in Hanoi.

"I was impressed with the dedication and diligence of DeStatte and his staff of U.S. Marines committed to resolving the remaining missing in action prisoners of war issues."

Lepping said that, despite the fact that it is a very poor country, the Vietnamese are hard-working and resourceful.

"This is reflected in the multitude of small businesses along the streets," she said.

"Here you find repairs for literally everything."

"We are such a throw-away society in our country. Their ability to reuse or repair everything was a real contrast for me."

"In Vietnam today, one has a sense of reawakening and vitality," she said.

"With 60 percent of the population under the age of 25, they are looking ahead and are willing to work hard for new opportunities."

Two-day rodeo set at Silvermoon

By Martin Richter
Staff writer

Yee-hah! There will be riding, roping, bull riding and barrel racing when cowboys converge on the Silvermoon Country Western Dance Hall for a two-day rodeo July 8-9.

Fam Snapp, one of the Silvermoon's owners, said this will be the first year for what is hoped to be an annual event.

The rodeo will run in conjunction with the 1994 Olympic Festival, which is expected to draw thousands of people to the St. Louis area — and particularly to Edwardsville for track and field events at the new SIUE stadium.

"We thought this would be a good time to do it, with a lot of people in town from outside the area," Snapp said. "It's going to be a heck of a lot of fun."

The rodeo will be fully sanctioned by the Rodeo Association and the Missouri Rodeo Cowboys Association, and professional riders will be competing for prize money as well as UFA and MRCA points.

The rodeo derives credibility from the fact that it is being organized by James Sears of Cordone, Iowa, Snapp said.

"The rodeo will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Friday, July 8, and from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, July 9, with additional competition during "slack time" at 9 a.m. on July 9.

The rodeo will be held on a grassy lot across from the parking lot at the club, which is located at 17 Gateway Drive in Collinsville.

Events include saddle bronc riding, bull riding, team roping, bareback riding, calf roping, bulldogging, women's barrel racing, over-40 roping and breakaway. There also will be rodeo clowns and plenty of food and drink, Snapp said.

The Silvermoon is looking for several sponsors for the event. Sponsors' names will be featured in radio and television advertising, and banners and tickets, Snapp said.

"Cost for a full sponsorship is $1,500; event sponsors will pay $500."

There also will be a "rodeo queen" competition open to area women who will compete to sell the most tickets to the rodeo.

And Snapp said local cowboys who are interested in competing can call the club for information on how to enter. For information on entering, or on becoming a sponsor or a rodeo queen contestant, call the Silvermoon at 34-MUSIC.

Extension positions open

The University of Illinois is accepting applications for membership on the Extension Council, the advisory board of the Madison-St. Clair Unit of the Cooperative Extension Service.

The Extension Council provides a way for citizens to participate in planning, delivering and evaluating Extension educational programs. Council members assist in identifying local issues so that the resources of the University can be used to address those issues.

Special areas of focus for the Extension Service are agriculture, youth development, strengthening family life, horticulture, community and economic development, natural resources management, community leadership and volunteerism, nutrition and wellness, and consumer and family economics.

Individuals with a background in one of these subject areas are encouraged to apply.

Council members, appointed by the Board of Trustees of the University of Illinois, will serve a two-year term beginning in July and must be residents of Madison or St. Clair counties.

Diversity in representation based on occupations, organizational membership, race, culture, sex and interests will be sought from applicants. Application deadline is June 3.

BAC registration under way

Registration is under way for summer and fall classes at Belleville Area College's campuses in Belleville, Granite City, Red Bud and extension centers throughout Southwestern Illinois.

Summer classes begin June 6 and fall classes begin Aug. 20.

"Summer classes at BAC are an excellent opportunity for students enrolled in a four-year school to obtain credits that are transferable from BAC to the college or university that they attend. Students are encouraged to see a counselor before registering," said registrar Lee Knoebel.

Registration times at the Granite City campus are: In-person and telephone registration—8 a.m.-8 p.m., Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m.-4 p.m., Friday.

Those registering by telephone at any of the three campuses may call 1-800-BAC-5131, extension 455, or 235-2700, Belleville; 931-0600, Granite City; and 282-6682, Red Bud.

A piece of history

Document shows Abe Lincoln worked in county

State researchers looking for Abraham Lincoln's court papers hit a jackpot in the Madison County archives.

A handwritten document Lincoln filed in Edwardsville Aug. 21, 1846, was discovered two weeks ago by two researchers of the Lincoln Legal Papers project.

"We think it's quite a find," said researcher Sean Brown, who found the document in Circuit Court records on loan to the Lovejoy Library at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. He and his associate, researcher Michael Duncan, have been digging through court records for the past three weeks.

"It's hard to explain," Brown said. "You look for something that's 148 years old and when you find it, it's quite a thrill. This is the 13th document I have found. This one is unique, however, because it is the first indication he was here."

Madison County Circuit Clerk Matt Melucci displayed the document, written and signed by Lincoln, at a press conference Wednesday. Several Madison County officials, including judges, were on hand to view the document, written on both sides of a single sheet of paper.

Melucci said the document will be displayed in the County Courthouse after it is preserved.

"This is an exciting piece of history that we want to present to the public and make available to Madison County students and history enthusiasts," he said. "We will have to look for a way to display it because light will apparently have an effect on it."

Researchers believe the document was filed to begin a lawsuit against two attorneys, Dudley M. Craig and Alfred Warner.

Lincoln and his partner, Stephen T. Logan, apparently represented the two lawyers in an appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court in 1842 and 1844 and filed a lawsuit to recover $1,000 owed them in legal fees.

The document, which bears the designation "praecept," believed to be the term then used to describe the initial document to open a court case, was filed by Madison County Circuit Clerk William Tyler Brown.

It reads: "The clerk of the Madison County Circuit Court will please issue a summons in the above entitled cause and deliver it to the bearer, to bring it forth with to be at Alton." It is signed, "A. Lincoln."

The document is unusual in that it includes

Lincoln's full name in his handwriting. "It has his name written out where it lists him as a plaintiff," said John Lupton, a research associate with the project. "Lincoln rarely wrote out his name."

Duncan said the document is worth $5,000 to $10,000. Lincoln's signatures sell for $1,500 to $2,500, and each word written in a document is worth $50 to $100.

"The last documented letter he wrote sold for $700,000 at an auction," Brown said. "It was a little more elaborate than what we have found here."

The Illinois Historic Preservation Agency's Lincoln Legal Papers staff plans to publish five volumes of Lincoln's cases, legal actions, case files, nonlitigation documents, financial records and correspondence.

Researchers hope to collect more than 100,000 documents written or signed by Lincoln before publishing the series in 1997. Duncan said the group has collected about 80,000 papers.

"We're finding out Lincoln was a total workaholic," he said. "I think people tend to forget he was an attorney for 25 years. He didn't just grow up in Salem and become president. He was making anywhere from $5,000 to $7,000 a year as an attorney."

Schools joining direct student loan program

Sixty-three Illinois schools will join the direct student loan program for the 1995-96 school year.

The program will save taxpayers more than $4.3 billion while offering a variety of benefits to students and their schools, according to Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., chief Senate sponsor and architect of the loan program.

"Including new for tens of thousands of Illinois students," Simon said. "I'm delighted with the strong response we've had from Illinois schools wanting to join early. Direct loans and income-based repayments are good for students, schools and taxpayers."

The schools added to the program, which began last year, include several of the state's largest colleges — Illinois State University, DePaul University, Knox College, Eastern Illinois University, Eureka College, Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago State University, Northern Illinois University, the University of Illinois at Chicago and Western Illinois University.

The list includes private and public schools, community colleges and career and technical schools throughout the state.

Four Illinois schools began the program last November. They are the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, Bradley University in Peoria, Fox College in Oak Lawn and DeVry Institute of Technology in Addison. They will begin offering direct loans this fall.

Direct loans allow schools to offer "one-stop shopping" to process a student's full aid package, including Pell grants as well as loans. Student borrowers can choose from several repayment options, including arrangements tailored to their incomes.

Direct loan programs can save students money by cutting loan interest rates and fees for students. Simon said the program also has fewer defaults and more accountability in administering loans.

According to Simon, changes in student fees alone under the direct loan program will save Illinois students more than $100 million in the first five years.

The first phase, to begin this fall, has 104 schools, representing 5 percent of current student loan volume. The second phase will be available to about 40 percent of the students "who now have guaranteed student loans."

More schools will be added later this year, Simon said.

New Amputee Support Group Meets

Recycling plan draws more foes

Residents are piling on more complaints about a Madison County plan to require curbside recycling and volume-based trash collection fees in larger municipalities.

About 25 people attended a public hearing Tuesday at the Jarvis Township Senior Citizens Center to air opposition to paying for trash service by the bag. The recycling plan drew a mixed reaction.

Glen Carbon farmer Terry Francis said he opposed the pay-by-the-bag system because it could lead to people dumping trash to avoid hauling fees.

"I'm against this plan because there would be an increased frequency of dumping on my farms and other farms as well," he said. "I don't feel we should have to clean up other people's trash."

Joe Parente, director of the county Building and Zoning Department, said education and stiffer dumping penalties would reduce the problem.

"Talking to other communities, at first there was an increase in dumping but then it tailed off," he said. "It's manageable; it can be dealt with. This can be done through public education, and through education, we can get people to recycle."

He also said he would recommend municipalities impose heavier penalties for dumping. County Board member Alan Dunstan of Troy said county officials should consider regulating the recyclable items accepted by trash haulers.

"Right now there are a lot of things in some communities that you can't put in your recyclable containers," he said. "This proposal would be better if we could be assured that all things that possibly can be recycled are."

Parente said that kind of detail would have to be dealt with later.

The county proposal was unveiled last month as a method to help Madison County reach a state mandate of reducing the waste stream heading into landfills by 15 percent.

The county missed the May 1 deadline for the 15 percent reduction. It has reduced waste by about 11 percent, officials said. In May 1996, the county will have to reduce the waste stream by 25 percent.

The county plan calls for forcing municipalities with populations of at least 1,000 to implement curbside recycling and require residents to pay for waste hauling by the bag rather than by flat rate.

Collinsville, Maryville and Troy all offer curbside recycling already through the same company that handles their trash collections, Laidlaw Waste Systems Inc.

But the proposed rules would change the way residents in these communities are charged for their trash — from the current flat fee to a scale based on volume.

The hearing in Troy was the third and last in a series. In the other hearings, officials from Alton, Wood River, East Alton and Godfrey had also expressed reservations about the plan. Municipal officials said the plan would be difficult and costly to implement.

From the Alton Telegraph

Scholarship bonanza

Fund inherits Vadalabene campaign money

Campaign contributors to the late Sen. Sam Vadalabene will be supporting scholarships for students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

The $48,000 remaining in Vadalabene's campaign fund has been turned over to the SIUE Foundation. Students who live within the 16th Senate District, represented by "Senator Sam" since 1971, will be eligible for the scholarships to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

Collinsville, after the last redistricting, is in the 56th District.

"That was his request. He was going to do that before he died," said Mary Vadalabene, the senator's widow.

She gave the foundation the check, which goes into the President's Scholarship fund. SIUE spokesman Sam Smith said about $35,000 is needed as principal to generate interest income used each year to pay for tuition and fees at SIUE.

At least one scholarship per year will be awarded in Vadalabene's name, Smith said. Mary Vadalabene said friends and supporters of her late husband are encouraged to contribute to the scholarship fund. Like the other Presidential Scholarships, the winners of the Vadalabene scholarship will be chosen by a screening committee, primarily on academic achievement in high school, Smith said. The scholarships are good for four years.

Vadalabene was a staunch champion of SIUE, getting money for many of the campus buildings, including the Vadalabene Center, the physical education complex and sports arena.

On Mother's Day, Pontoon Baptist Church presented flowers to the five oldest mothers in attendance.

Those receiving flowers were Leta Kollenburn, Esther Moad, Lucille Martin, Ida Mercer and Juanita Craycraft. Kollenburn was also recognized as Mother of the Year and received a bouquet of flowers and a box of candy.

The five youngest mothers and the mother of the youngest baby also received flowers. Members of the youth group met each mother at the door and gave a crocheted bookmark to them.

Following the Sunday morning service at the Pontoon Baptist Church, the youth group met at McDonald's and ate dinner. The group then returned to the church for its regular meeting.

A new project was started, building a replica of the Ark of the Covenant, tripped in gold with two cheebins on the top. It will be on display in the church when finished.

The group also made plans for other projects and is studying the Bible along with the projects.

Those taking part are Tony Buchek, Jason Potter, Tarre Falter, Greg Buchek, Kelly Potter and Jon Kenner. The leader is Dianna Bickel.

Ranken Technical

Jason Nance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Nance of Granite City, has been awarded the President's Award from Ranken Technical College of St. Louis. Students are honored with this award by carrying a high grade-point average for the school year. Jason has achieved a 3.70 grade point based on a 4.0 grade scale.

Jason will be entering his second year in the fall of 1994. He is majoring in architectural engineering and plans to finish out his schooling in hopes of landing a career with a highly-reputable architectural firm.

S. Dakota State

Donna O'Toole of Granite City was among the 994 candidates for graduation during spring commencement ceremonies at South Dakota State University at Brookings.

Leon J. Wraga was honored as distinguished professor of plant science, and Robert Burns was honored as distinguished professor of political science.

Lonell Moeller, professor of education, and Gerald Myers, professor of biology, received the SDSU Faculty Award for Excellence in Teaching. Nancy McIntire of Fruittale, a graduating senior in the College of Arts and Science, presented the commencement address.

W. Illinois University

Western Illinois University senior chemistry major Michele Lee Snelson of Granite City was honored as a magna cum laude graduate at WIU's April 17 Academic Honors Convocation, which recognizes the academic achievements of students who were to receive baccalaureate degrees at Western Illinois University.

Lee Snelson

versity's May 14 commencement exercises, held on the campus in Macomb.

Magna cum laude graduates must have completed a minimum of 60 semester hours at WIU and attain a cumulative grade-point average of 3.80 to 3.99 on a 4.0 scale.

E. Carolina University

Timothy W. Hutchison of Granite City, a student at the East Carolina University School of Medicine in Greenville, was recently awarded a fellowship that will enable him to serve eight weeks in medical mission at a needy site in the Third World.

Hutchison and two other third-year medical students at ECU received three of eleven MAP Reader's Digest International Fellowships recently awarded to medical residents, interns, and medical students across the country. They will spend two months of their senior year putting their medical training to use at a rural mission hospital in the developing country of Kenya.

Timothy Hutchison

MAP International, a Christian global health and development organization, will pay 75 percent of each recipient's round trip air fare. The fellowships are made possible by an endowment gift from the late DeWitt Wallace, founder of "Reader's Digest."

Recipients are selected on the basis of academic standing, personal development, cultural adaptability, world concern, desire for voluntary service and a sincere interest in developing world medical missions.

Hutchison plans a career in family medicine. He said his exposure to the kind of medicine practiced in Kenya — medicine lacking the advanced technology available in the United States — will make him a better doctor. He also said he feels good about being able to assist the physicians who are already in Kenya. "They're so short-handed," he said, "even a fourth-year medical student can be a big help."

Hutchison isn't planning a trip of all work and no play; he hopes to participate in a few safaris and mountain-climbing expeditions while in Kenya.

Jonathan Galbreath, right, a senior from Granite City High School, displays his award winning entry for The Pasta House Company/Discover Card "Great Works of Art" contest. Galbreath received first place and $500. Phyllis Weiss, left, art instructor for Granite City, also received $500 for the school's art department.

GCHS student wins Pasta House art contest

Winners of the fifth annual Pasta House Company/Discover Card high school art contest received $3,000 in prize money for their rendition of great works of art with a plate of spaghetti incorporated into the design.

A panel of six art professionals selected winners from an exhibit of 63 entries submitted by high schools throughout the metropolitan St. Louis area. Criteria for judging the winners were originality/creativity, execution and the ability of the art work to be used in an advertising campaign for The Pasta House Company.

First place winner, Jonathan Galbreath, a senior from Granite City High School, received $500 for his interpretation of Renior's "Luncheon of the Boating Party." In Galbreath's version, everyone was enjoying a luncheon of pasta. Phyllis Weiss, Granite City High School art instructor, also received $500 for the school's art department.

Second place award of $300 went to James Agne, a senior from Columbia High School. Gerald Humphreys, art instructor at Columbia High School, also was presented $300 for the school. The third place $200 winner was Carrice Delo, a junior from Ladue High School in Missouri. The school was also given $200.

"Once again we had outstanding art work presented by the students in our annual art contest," said John Ferrara, president of The Pasta House Company. "The Pasta House Company and Discover Card are proud to sponsor this contest each year, which provides high school students an opportunity to be recognized and rewarded for their creativity and talents."

The Pasta House Company is an independently owned chain of 24 family Italian restaurants located in Missouri, Illinois and Kentucky. It also operates the Mike Shannon Steaks and Seafood Restaurant and Brett Hull's Restaurant and Grill located in St. Louis.

The minutes were read by the secretary and approved by the auxiliary. The treasurer's report was also approved by the auxiliary.

The president at this time asked for nominations for officers for the coming year.

Modrusic will be the past madam president. Those nominated for the officers for this coming year were Ann Pates, president; Connie Motil, vice president; Millie Weatherford, chaplain; Vera Johnson, conductress; Sue Allan, outside guard; Ruth Jorgensen, three-year trustee; and Nameoki Women's Club held its monthly meeting on April 20 at the Brown Recreation Center. President Marian Mertz opened the meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance. Frieda Burdorf, chaplain, presented the devotion. A letter from the First Presbyterian Church was read thanking the club for the memorial given for Bernadine Cooley. Ella Wade has arranged for a $100 art scholarship to be given to a worthy high school student to attend a summer art camp.

Frieda Burdorf announced the installation of new officers will be held on May 18 at the Legacy. Helen Kuentler will give a book review. Dorothy McCauley moved the state of officers be elected by acclamation. They are as follows: president, Edna Forcade; vice president, Marian Shelton; recording secretary, Dolores Allen; corresponding secretary, Edna Forcade; treasurer, Frieda Burdorf.

The business meeting was conducted by the vice president, Helen Testerman. The report of the spring clinic, which was held in Springfield, was given by those who attended. The education director reported on the essay, poster and coloring contests. Next month, awards will be given to those who won the various contests. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Virgie Settle and Violet Miller. The next meeting will be at 7 p.m. May 23 in the fellowship hall of the Central Free Methodist Church in Pontoon Beach.

Daughters of Revolution

The Trussell Andrews Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution held its April meeting in the home of Jane Vaucler. After a breakfast snack, the meeting was opened with Regent Barbara Williams leading the group in the DAR Ritual and the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag.

The message from the President General was read by Linda Mizell, and Emma Schoen gave the National Defense report on the National POW Memorial which will be located in Andersonville, Ga.

A certificate from the NSDAR was presented to Vaneiser in recognition of her 25 years of membership and service to the organization as of this month. Other chapter members who have previously earned this honor are: Virgie Collins, 25 years last October; currently Janet Wilson has 25 years; Mae McCormick, 45 years; and the late Florence Woodward had 63 years of membership. School will join these women as she becomes a 25-year member in December.

Members were reminded that the information for the next yearbook must be completed at the May meeting. Also pending is a revision of the Chapter's bylaws; this will depend on action taken at the Continental Congress in Washington, D.C., in April.

Mizzell gave the program on "Thomas Jefferson: His Ride to Richmond" and his latter accomplishments.

Evening Circle

The Evening Circle of First Presbyterian Church met in the Ladies Parlor of the church with June Jones as hostess.

Chairman Betty Schmiedake opened the meeting with prayer. Minutes were read by Secretary Betty Rea and reports were given.

Barbara Landis read the Mission Yearbook of Prayer entitled, "Women of Faith Work for Change," written by Mons Khau, a voice from Lebanon. Least coin monies were collected and will be presented and were to be dedicated at the May Fellowship Meeting of Church Women United on May 6th.

The lesson, "A Prayer of Complaint," was presented by Gladys Pape. Scripture from Job 10:2-22 was used concerning Job's prayer of complaint to God following his devastating misfortunes. The lesson stressed that while it is true that we often bring misfortune on ourselves because of our own foolishness, the message of Job is that the ultimate reason for human suffering is beyond our rational understanding. The final answer lies with God. The lesson concluded with prayer.

Following the lesson, a poem by Helen Steiner Rice, "Trust and Believe and You Will Receive," was read along with the poem, "Someday He Will Make It Plain."

The meeting closed as the members formed a circle and repeated the Mizpah.

Sluggers rout Elks for first victory

The Sluggers baseball team began the 1994 season in winning fashion last week, defeating the Granite City Elks 26-1.

Kenny Lindsey, hit the first over-the-fence home run of the season at Wilson Park, a shot estimated at 260 feet. The Sluggers played well defensively, too. Preston Brown, the Sluggers' new catcher, contributed in the first game by throwing out base-runners at second and third. He also hit a pair of doubles and triples.

"All the boys hit very well," Sluggers manager Winston Mayes said.

Dickerson's slam lifts Bluejays

Jon Paul Dickerson's grand slam in the fifth inning led the Bluejays baseball team to a 10-5 victory over Arnette Pattern in a Bantam II game last week at Wilson Park.

Dickerson went 2-for-3 with five runs batted in for the Bluejays, the defending Bantam champions. Starting pitcher Aaron Rangel went four innings and allowed one run on no hits. He struck out ten batters, walked two and was credited with the win, his first of the year.

Luke Forrester pitched three innings of relief and allowed four runs on three hits, no walks and three errors. He struck out seven to record his first save.

The Bluejays had a running game to go along with their offense. Nick Gaines led the team with three stolen bases. Jonathan Goodyear and Christopher Mioduski executed the team's first double steal and both scored on a hit by Eric Hooper. Ryan McAtee, James Mayo, Tyler Johnson and Dickerson each had two stolen bases.

Defensively, Hooper gunned down two runners attempting to steal third from behind the plate. In the fourth, shortstop McAtee fielded a relay throw from Jonathan Ferry and made a long throw home to Goodyear to retire a runner attempting to score.

Softball

(Continued from Page 4B) "I'm really glad I won," she said. "This helps me feel a lot better. You're going to have bad days, you can't help that."

Friday was anything but a bad day for Stinson, who also had two hits and knocked in a run in the fifth inning. Stinson had gone with a walk since a April 23 victory at O'Fallon.

Cahokia took advantage of some wildness by Granite City pitcher Jennifer Willis, who picked up the loss. The sophomore left-hander gave up four of her nine walks in the opening frame.

Included in Cahokia's four-run sixth was an RBI single by Kathy Tindall and nine wild pitches by Willis. Lady Warrior coach John Hutchings said his team continues to play badly in spurts.

"It seems like we've been having that one bad inning somewhere along the line," Hutchings said.

"We played a lot better than our previous game, but it was Thursday to Bethalto, but it's getting toward the end of the season now and we've got to stay away from those bad innings."

The Lady Comanches led 9-0 after the fifth inning, when they came up with four of their 10 hits. With one out, Tindall singled to right and stole second. Following a popout, Nicole Gillen doubled home Tindall.

Stinson then smacked a run-scoring single to left, before Juan Grant walked. Kristi Melan (three hits and three stolen bases) then brought Grant home with her third consecutive single.

"I'm glad we're hitting the ball, I just hope it continues," Cahokia coach Bill Mader said. "This was a big win for (Stinson). She needed it."

Granite City could muster only three hits off Stinson, but the Lady Warriors did get on the board in their last at-bat. Sheila Mel led off the seventh and reached on an error by Cahokia second baseman Leslie Rose.

After Jessica Thomas popped out, Julie Bohlenstedt ripped a triple over left fielder Melissa Sheridan's head and came home when the Lady Comanches couldn't execute the relay throw. Stinson struck out eight and walked none and also helped Cahokia snap its first two-game losing slide of the season.

Lady Warriors

Lady Warriors were thrilled with the win and Roby's goal. Every player scored for Granite City at least once this season.

"All the girls were really happy," Kirby said. "Roby has been playing real well in the last few games and they were real happy to see her score."

The Lady Warriors dominated the opposition this season, outscoring teams 67-4. Granite City had 12 shutouts.

The team was made up entirely of freshmen and excelled despite competing against older teams.

"They're just good, there's no getting around it," Kirby said. "There have been other JV teams that have gone undefeated, but these girls are just very talented."

"They played with a lot of composure against older and bigger girls. They had a great season."

Kennerly's two goals against O'Fallon gave her a total of nine on the year. Kennerly had just one goal through the first eight games but scored eight over the final seven games of the season.

Earlier in the week, the Lady Warriors shut out Roxana 6-0. Kennerly, Roxie Simpson, Carrie Simpson, Michelle Montgomery, Connie Meyers and Amanda Nizinski all scored.

Kristen Knox had two assists and Tara Tomlinson had one. Martin and Derosssett shared the shutout.

The Lady Warriors finished the year with wins over Incarnate Word, Duchesne, Hazelwood Central and Collinsville. Kirby said most of the players will continue to play with Granite City's varsity team.

Sectional

ing 80 to 87 points. We have to be mentally ready to respond, and I'm confident these guys can get the job done."

Meanwhile, Lincoln coach Leonard Manley had mixed feelings about his team. The Tigers, plagued by youth, produced five state qualifiers. Lincoln won the 3200 relay (7:51.7), finished second in the 400 relay (42.4), was fourth in the 800 relay (1:30.3) and second in the 1600 relay (3:20.6). Keith Rogers was third in the 300 hurdles (39.5).

"We sort of had an idea what our guys would do," Manley said. "But maybe we were expecting a little too much. Experience was our downfall. Most of our young guys tightened up, but this is a tough sectional. I would almost call it a mini state meet."

"The top three or four teams here are very good in the same events. That posed a huge challenge to our kids. We only got five qualifiers out of this, but we're going to attack the state meet the same way."

Edwardsville finished sixth with 38 points, but the Tigers produced five state qualifiers. Senior Kenedix led the way by qualifying in two events—the 3200 relay (first in 8:05.4) and the 1600 (first in 4:22.6).

Most of a super role model for our program," Edwardsville coach Tim Dougherty said. "He gave me everything he had. The guy is completely worn out, but he earned it. He ran as hard as he could and led us to the promised land."

James Keller (first in the pole vault in 13 feet), Gus Booker (first in the 110 high hurdles in 14.7) will join Hofeldt at state.

"I'm extremely proud of these kids," Dougherty said. "We pushed them all season and they responded."

Alton, plagued by injuries and defections, finished eighth with 22 points.

Brandt reaches state finals

Granite City High School's Stephanie Brandt advanced to the state finals in the discus in Friday's qualifying round of the Class AA state girls meet at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

Brandt, a freshman who won the Collinsville Sectional last week and was undefeated in the discus entering Friday's meet, advanced with a throw of 122 feet, 7 inches. Brandt's effort left her in sixth place. Danielle Mall of Stevenson won the qualifying round with a throw of 136-0.

Details of Saturday's state finals will appear in Wednesday's Journal.

•Dickerson•

feel pretty comfortable pitching against some of the better teams. It makes me work harder because I know if I mess up, we'll pay for it.

"So far, I've done better than I expected. I wanted to improve on last year."

What Dickerson accomplished last year was spectacular. In his first varsity start, against archrival Edwardsville, Dickerson turned in a complete-game shutout and a 1-0 win for the Warriors.

That performance earned Dickerson a permanent spot in the starting rotation, and he responded by going 5-1 with a 0.59 ERA the rest of the way. Dickerson's 1993 ERA mark ranks second behind Tom Stutch, who recorded a 0.44 ERA in 1985.

Ironically, Dickerson did not make the cut at GCHS as a freshman and then sat out his sophomore year. When he came out as junior, Dickerson made several appearances in relief before coach Bob Stegemeier started him against Edwardsville. At the time, the Tigers were ranked No. 1 in the St. Louis area.

"Nobody really knew who I was," Dickerson said. "It was exciting. I knew (the Tigers) were good. But everybody was telling me I needed a big game. I didn't let it bother me."

"The season he had just coming out of nowhere was absolutely phenomenal," Liguori said. "I remember when he came out as a junior, Coach Stegemeier said to take a real good look at Corey Dickerson. We heard a lot of good things about him, and we didn't want to miss him again."

"The thing that stood out right from the beginning was his ability to throw strikes. Two high school seasons later, he's still throwing strikes."

Dickerson fanned a season-high 13 batters April 22 against Olive Memorial in a 3-1 win. In his next outing, May 2 against Edwardsville, Dickerson got the decision in Granite City's 1-0 victory.

Dickerson followed up that victory with wins over Belleville East (May 5) and Belleville West (May 10). Against West, Dickerson enjoyed another dominating effort and helped the Warriors improve to 7-0 in conference play.

In each game, Dickerson has quietly gone about his business while challenging the hitters with a wide variety of pitches.

"He's had a great year," Granite City pitching coach Dan DePew said. "He stays within his head and is under control. What amazes me about him is the amount of time it takes him to learn something. He catches on so quick."

DePew introduced a split-finger pitch to Dickerson earlier this season and has watched the GCHS ace mix it in effectively with his other pitches. While he is not a fireballer, he can be overpowering.

"I try to mix it up a lot," Dickerson said. "I've always thrown kind of hard. Earlier in the year, Coach told me I needed another pitch and that's when I started with the split-finger."

"It's really helped a lot. It got me on a shorter stride and I'm coming out on top more. At the beginning of the year, my curveball seemed flat. Now it just seems to break more."

"A lot of good pitchers at this level have only two pitches," DePew said. "He has four pitches, and he can throw all of them for strikes."

In his most recent start, Tuesday at Collinsville, Dickerson kept the Kaboks guessing by mixing speeds and location. With runners at first and third and the Warriors ahead 2-0 in the third inning, Dickerson caught Paul Heimkamp looking with a curveball strike on a 3-2 count.

"That was a real good pitch," DePew said. "That was a big out."

The Warriors went on to win 8-6 and wrap up the Southwestern Conference title. Granite City, 20-6 entering the weekend, has enjoyed a banner season.

Dickerson, meanwhile, is closing out his career by nearing the top of the GCHS record books.

Dating back to last season, Dickerson's cumulative ERA is less than 1.00. The career record belongs to Ron Rains, who posted a 1.11 ERA from 1977-88.

There is little doubt Dickerson will finish among the top 10 GCHS career ERA leaders, and he will be joining some familiar company. He could surpass his uncle, Bill Dickerson, who recorded a 1.89 ERA from 1974-75 and is ninth on the list.

"That's something I wanted to do," Corey Dickerson said. "I talk to him all the time. If I'm doing something wrong, he'll tell me what it is and how to go about fixing it."

"It's obvious he's had family members help him develop," DePew said. "It's not that he came to Granite City and we made him a good pitcher. He had the ability and he developed it over the years."

Before his junior season, Dickerson accompanied his Mitchell Khoury League team to the national tournament. Last summer, he pitched American Legion baseball for the Tri-City Triplets.

Dickerson's brief but highly successful career at GCHS will soon be wrapping up. He has been recruited by several local junior colleges, most notably Rend Lake, Kaskaskia, Lewis and Clark and McKendree College.

Bill Dickerson pitched at McKendree, but Corey remains undecided.

"I'm not sure yet," Dickerson said. "I really haven't made up my mind."

Until he does, Dickerson will be busy leading the Warriors into the postseason. Granite City will face Jerseyville or Alton in the Wood River Regional next Saturday.

"We're taking it one game at a time," Dickerson said. "We're not trying to do too much. We're having a good year so far, and hopefully we can continue it."

Corey Dickerson fires to the plate. Dickerson has 54 strikeouts in 43 1/3 innings this year.

and followed his path all the way to the finish line.

Swindell, who started racing sprint cars when he was 18, has more than 600 career victories.

"But this one was extra special. I sat out half the season last year," Swindell said. "But I'm associated with a new owner."

"Jeff Gilliam," a new team and a new car. It's been a growing process for all of us.

"We didn't finalize this thing until the beginning of the new year. But things are starting to click. Winning this race tells me we're ready to turn the corner."

Posting a victory over Kinser and Blaney, two of the biggest names on the outlaw circuit, is a good start.

"Unlike NASCAR or the Indy cars, it all depends on the driver at this level," Swindell said. "At those levels, it doesn't matter who's driving the car. But down here, the driver has to be in complete control."

"These cars are like rockets. You've got to be extremely patient and you've got to have a lot of poise. It's easy to panic, especially when you're in a position like I was in tonight. But it was my race to win or lose. I knew Steve was bounding me, and he's a great driver. But I wasn't going to be denied."

"I've been in this business a long time," Kinser said. "And you're going to have nights like this. Sammy ran an intelligent race and the slick track allowed me to stay on his tail. But I just couldn't overtake him. He won the race and deserved it."

Knowing the law clarifies confusion about warranties

When you buy a new imported or domestic car or truck, what you don't know about warranties can hurt you.

For instance, how would you respond to this question: "If I just bought a new Nissan, what are the legal requirements for having my oil and oil filter changed without voiding my warranty?"

Should you:

1. Change it yourself and save the receipts for the oil and filter?
2. Take it to your neighborhood service station?
3. Take it to your Nissan dealer because you must use original equipment parts?
4. Take it to a quick oil-change outlet?

Any of the above would not void the warranty. You do have options for servicing your warranted vehicle. And it's written into the law.

"The fact is, you are under no obligation to use the manufacturer's replacement parts," said Joan Hershey, manager of Fram Automotive Filter Products at Allied-Signal Aftermarket Filter Division.

Warranty Improvement Act prohibits manufacturers from making their warranties conditional on the use of any specific product or service part. The act provides that product free of charge or if the Federal Trade Commission has specifically published that only the vehicle manufacturer's product is needed," she said.

"People do not need to spend the excessive time and money to have dealers use 'genuine manufacturers' parts. That's why Fram launched a consumer education program called 'It's the Law' which educates both foreign and domestic vehicle owners about their rights to use a favorite service outlet preferred brand of quality product, such as Fram."

Many new vehicle owners, however, believe mistakenly that they have to replace their oil filter with the same brand of filter as the original equipment brand.

This misconception is especially dominant among the primary target audience of the act, who have been led to believe by vehicle manufacturers that they need to replace original foreign parts with the same foreign brand to ensure warranty coverage.

Simple warranty facts

Here are five key facts you should know about vehicle warranties:

There are two kinds of warranties: (1) the basic warranty that comes with the vehicle and (2) extended warranties which cost extra and provide additional coverage.

The basic warranty usually provides bumper-to-bumper coverage for a short period, often no longer than 12 months or 12,000 miles, and powertrain coverage for a longer period, 7 years or 70,000 miles in some cases.

Hershey said you must understand exactly what kind of repair is included under bumper-to-bumper and powertrain warranties to make meaningful comparisons among different manufacturers' warranties. Bumper-to-bumper coverage is usually comprehensive, while powertrain coverage usually covers the engine, transmission, drive shaft and differential housing and gears.

Reading the fine print will help you make an intelligent purchase. For example, many basic warranties include deductibles, minimum repair costs the vehicle owner must bear. Others include exclusions for electronic controls or other components. Sometimes, you can buy coverage for these excluded systems.

To keep the warranty in effect, you must follow the requirements for preventive maintenance, such as oil and filter changes and lubrication, in your owner's manual. If you do preventive maintenance, you have someone else do it other than the dealer, save your receipts. If you apply for warranty repairs, you may need receipts to prove that the malfunction did not result from your neglect.

Extended warranties are offered by the vehicle manufacturers, dealers, and independent third parties. Generally, manufacturer warranties are honored by all of that manufacturer's dealers. Dealer warranties may be honored only by the dealer who sold it. Independent warranties are honored according to the specifications of the contract. Make sure you understand the specifications of any extended warranty you buy.

Shocks, struts contribute to safe, smooth operation

Professional drivers long have been familiar with the need for properly functioning shocks and struts. Their primary function is to keep tires in firm contact with the road, helping to ensure maximum safety.

The average American driver, however, may not recognize the important contributions shocks and struts make to driving safety. That partially is because shocks and struts have no dramatic signaling device to warn the owner when they need to be replaced. What a driver ultimately experiences is a slow decline in vehicle handling, control and braking capabilities. The cumulative effect of this gradual wear may lead to safety problems when emergency situations arise.

Most drivers are unaware that each strut and shock goes up and down about 1,750 times every mile at average highway speeds. That adds up to 15 million stabilizing actions every 25,000 miles. Under this rigorous workout is no wonder that struts and shocks experience gradual "wear out."

The average (and better than average) driver may become used to less-than-optimum handling and stopping ability on bumpy roads. Drivers often gradually get accustomed to cornering and high-speed lane changes that may not feel "quite right." They may not even notice differences in how the vehicle performs until the demands of sudden swerving or emergency stopping must be met.

These compromises with safety may be due to the inability of worn struts and shocks to keep the tires firmly on the road surface.

And the worst part is that there are no warning signs that failing struts and shocks may become a potential problem in the safe operation of your vehicle.

Fortunately, avoiding the driving safety hazards that can result from strut and shock wear out can be accomplished easily through a simple and fast inspection. Shock manufacturers suggest that, for safety sake, an inspection of your ride control components be a part of the regularly scheduled maintenance for your vehicle, particularly if it has been 25,000 miles since your last shock or strut safety check.

The inspection itself is simple, quick and can be done while other routine service maintenance is being performed.

Your service technician, trained in preventing safety problems that worn struts and shocks can cause, will be checking carefully for these conditions—leaking struts or shocks, bent or damaged piston rods, vehicle sag, unusual tire wear, unbalanced wheels, large dents on the housing of shocks or struts as well as broken, damaged or missing ride control hardware.

The car owner also has a role to play in ensuring that struts and shocks are contributing to the safe operation of the vehicle.

The motorist should help the service technician by reporting any of these symptoms that may be indicative of excessively worn struts and shocks: too much vehicle "bounce," suspension noise, noticeable "roll" or "sway" or front end "dive" when braking.

With the help of your observations on changes in your vehicle's handling performance and the careful inspection of possible safety trouble spots by your trained technician, corrective action can be taken to ensure that your struts or shocks continue to do their part in keeping your tires firmly on the road for safer driving.

If you add your service technician decide your vehicle's safety can be enhanced with installation of new struts or shocks. Remember to replace all four units at the same time for a safer, more balanced ride. This can provide improved handling, a more comfortable ride, and more importantly, help ensure that your vehicle can successfully meet emergency driving situations.
